

The Enlightenment Series

Enlightenment is not something that comes to us. It is a combination of qualities that we practice, until they become a part of our being. When we finally let the light in us shine out onto the world, we become “the light of the world.”

This four-part Sunday series by Paul Gonyea, Senior Minister of the Spiritual Living Center of Atlanta, highlights four qualities practiced by the great mystic teachers, and shows how we can develop these qualities in our own lives.

CLARITY: I Can See Clearly Now

This is the “intellectual component” of enlightenment. We must clearly see the path we are following, and know clearly who we are and who God is.

INTEGRITY: The Right Thing To Do

This is the “processing component” of enlightenment. It means being honest with ourselves about what we believe and what we want out of life.

COMPASSION: I See the God in You

This is the “heart component” of enlightenment. As spiritual beings, we must express our love and respect for others, while allowing them the opportunity to create the life they desire.

FAITH: I Do Believe

This is the “foundation component” of enlightenment. It is a firm and unwavering belief in the presence and the power of Spirit in every person and every situation.

Those enlightened beings who have been our teachers have always told us that they are no different from us. They simply have learned to recognize their own spiritual magnificence, and that of every other person.
